				Account of how Henry Jackson, who was then on guard, took the fort and murdered Governor Johnson. Various soldiers from watchpoints conspire with four more soldiers who had stowed themselves onboard the ship Francis and Mary – 'who was bound for Angola out of Hanborough' and Isaac Leach, a condemned prisoner. Jackson let all of them into the fort on Friday night when the rest of the watch was off duty. They then called up the guards one by one and asked them 'whither they would consent with them in their wicked Designe, 'which was to Plunder the Fort, rifle the valley of all Treasure that might be found therein, Demolish the Fortification, to imprison the Govr and Council with all persons below at the Fort or in the Valley that would not adhere to their designs, and afterwards to seize on the ship that was in the Road and so make their escape, by which means calling persons up singly and examining them in the matter and finding them not to agree with them they had imprisoned all that was within the walls or the Fort except what was in the Forthouse without the least noyse'

			'...in a Dungeon under ground being a secure place built on purpose to secure villinous and desperate Blacks. Having thus secured all in the night, in the morning being Saturday as soon as the Trevally had beaten the Govr coming out to deliver the Sergt the keys of the Fort he was seized on (having then only his gowne and slippers) but the Govr crying out and making resistance they inhumanly and barbarously wounded him with three shot in the head then hauled him into the guard and lett him in, that Lamentable Condition for two or three hours then suffered his lady with two negro women to carry him into his own chamber—afterwards they went into the Forthouse and secured all persons therein. Mr Solomon Heaston they put in the dungeon. The Govr Lady they halled naked out of bed and forced her to carry her cloaths under her arms into another room to dress herself—afterward they secured all passages up into the country so that no news could be carried there and imprisoned all persons in the valley, and so fast as the soldiers repaired to the Guard (it being Relief day) they took them and imprisoned them guard them with Centinells well armed, afterwards they plundered the Fort, took away all the Company's Treasure spiked up all their guns oversett the guns on Munden's mount & point tumbling the carriages down the Hill where they were broaken, Then Carried as prisoners on board the ship (after they had got on board with what prisoners they could). Lt. Keelinge, Mr. John Luffkin, Thomas Goodwin, and Rich Gurling whom they detained until Lords Day Eveng then admitted them to come on shore, when they came on shoare they understood that the Governr Dyed of his wounds on Satturday evening which lamentable loss never to be sufficiently Greived for being to the Terror and Consternation of the whole Island for the Loss of so good and pious an able Ruler among us. It was thought fitt by us that a Jury of Inquest be impanelled by us to enquire not only after the manner of the said Govrs death for that is apparent enough. But also to enquire if any of the Rogues be left behind culpable to be called in question about the aforesaid villany.'	y.	n

25 Consultation, FSJ	22/06/93	Gargen imprisoned and then taken onboard with other prisoners. Jackson tells him that they plan to put off Gantry and his family at Ascension. Pitt's role is ambiguous – Jackson says he will 'go anywhere where Capt. Pitts would have him' but Pitts also said to have 'wept bitterly and Desired he might have liberty to goe on shoare, But Jackson Tould him no harme should come to him, for he would stick by him as long as he had one drop of blood left. And that he [Gargen] heard Capt. Pitts say that they had best go to the Cape of Virginia – and as they met with ships coming out to distribute the Company.' Elizabeth wife of John Luftkin said Lancaster, Fogg and Matt. Hill came to her house and Hill told her to come to his wedding but then imprisoned her in the Fort.	y.	n
26 Consultation, FSJ	22/06/93	Elizabeth Luftkin reports overheard conversation in which Pitt refuses to come with the rebels. Luftkin's evidence – also imprisoned then carried onboard. Also reports Pitt crying and begging to go ashore – also that 'Capt. Pitts Begged Capt. Kelinge to give him a piece of paper privately to show when he came to another place that he was forced off this island, which might be a means to cleare himself'.	n.	n
27 Consultation, FSJ	22/06/93	Evidence of Philip Derancour – set to guard Madame Johnson by rebels but told her 'to get away what she could with speed', and gave the key of the chest to her slave, 'Black Bess'. Then on the advice of the Doctor goes into the country to warn people.	n.	n

Court of Justice, 7 &
176 Session House	08/01/1695	George Hoskison complains of Rooker for saying that that he was privy to Jackson's conspiracy.	y.	y.
		Rooker confirms the accusations and calls for Gargen, who is sworn. Gargen says that Fogg told him about the conspiracy between Jackson, Gantry and others before the arrival of the Francis and Mary . And that the plan was to make Hoskison come with them 'to be their boy and fidler on purpose to plague him (Fogg having an antipathy agst Hoskison)'. Fogg then asked to become one of the conspirators and told Hoskison, swearing him to secrecy. Gargen told Governor Johnson about the plan, who made light of it but told Fogg to continue to associate with them and let him know about the plans.	n.	y.

Volume 5

25	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	'Information having bin given by Bertrant Audovants, a French Smith, that the Dutch men belonging to the Mary had a Designe when gone from the Island to take the Ship Mary and carry her to ffrance, Capt. Hayse was made acquainted therewith'. The Dutch men in question are said to have run away from the Dutch fleet at the Cape on the ship – Gilbert Johnson and Cooper. These men tell Audovant (left out of ship Thomas , Capt. Bye) that two of their countrymen also on the ship intended to kill all the English onboard and take the ship to France. Betrand then reports the plot to Vernon and the Governor.	n.	n.
26	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Cont. The Dutchmen are named as John Roman, Court Johnson, and John Derrick, the navigator. John Bruce, who speaks and understands good Dutch was therefore planted at a public house to talk to Cooper. His evidence given.	n.	n.
27	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Betrant Audovart's statement – in French, repeats the description above of his meeting and identity of the men involved. Audovart asks if he is not a Christian and believe that murder was wicked, to which he replies that he does not value the English.	n.	n.
28	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Cont, with English translation	n.	n.
29	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Cont.	n.	n.
30	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Second statement from Audovant about Cooper's threat to kill the English.	n.	n.
31	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Cont., Declaration of Gilbert Johnson – who was asked by the Dutch to join them in taking the ship.	n.	n.
32	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	On evidence of John Bruce all Dutch onshore are ordered to be imprisoned in the dungeon. Cooper, Romain and Court Johnson admit to the plot, the navigator and other Dutch deny it, but all eight are suspected and detained until the arrival of 'her majesty's ship the Kingfisher ' which they were sent onboard. Capt. Thomas Hayes of the Mary says he took three men onto his ship at Madagascar - John Stivey, John Leonard, and Edmund Baker who can 'give a full account of the West Indian Traders, and their supplying the Pirates that generally habours there'.	n.	n.
33	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Baker and Stiverly examined. Say they were shipped on the Margarrett of New York to Madagascar to trade for slaves. The ship was cleared by the Governor, who also gave it a commission to sink all French ships that it met with on the way. The first port of call was 'Deligoe on the main of Africa'. Ship cleaned and tallowed onshore and trades ivory for brass lockets and bracelets and other brass wear. They then went to Madagascar, meeting Capt. Hays in the Mary on the way 'and in that voyage to Madagascar saw to [two] sorts of arms in the shipp which the commander in their hearing has often said that one sort was for the Privateers and the other sort for negroes, vizt. Dogg locks were for the privateers and the Round French Locks were for to trade with Negroes for slaves as aforesaid'. Burgess also said to have many provisions.	n.	n.
34	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	These provisions – rum, sugar, powder etc. are also said to be for the privateers. Shots exchanged between the Mary and Margaret – the three men now at St Helena had quarreled with the Captain about this incident and 'left the ship and ran away amongst the Negroes' before being picked up some days later by the Mary . Some words missing – returns to account of Margaret landing at a place called Tellier in Madagascar where Burgess has an English-speaking local contact.	n.

35	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Burgess asks his contact for news of privateers – told that Capt. Hoare – from Rhodes Island with crew mainly from New York - had gone to the Red Sea and was expected again shortly. Burgess said to have been previously 'a privateer (or pirate)' in the ship James now sunk at Madagascar and boasts about taking several of the Mocha fleet [i.e. Persian or Mughal ships] and Portuguese ships in various places. Capt Every [i.e. Avery] had been there with four ships now gone to the Red Sea, each taking two ships belonging to Mocha.	y (notes mention of Avery)	.
36	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Cont. Men claim that Burgess will come to St Helena next, probably in Jan or Feb. Names of crew, owner and master of the Margaret are given. Examination of John Leonard, who had previously been onboard the privateer Resolution , Capt. Robert Glover, commissioned by the 'Government of Antioque'.	n.	n.
37	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Account of voyage of Resolution , from New York, to Cape Verde, to Guinea, about to take a 'cut' Portuguese ship when encounters a Dutch ship – argue over commissions.	n.	n.
38	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Cont. Arrival at Madagascar via island of 'Fogo' where they picked up seven men previously left there by a privateer and encounter Hoare, with a commission from New York.	n.	n.
39	Consultation, FSJ	07/12/96	Glover claims that his commission from New York allows him to trade as an 'interloper'. Capt. Babb apparently buys this commission from him in return for 14 thousand pounds and a sloop to take him home. Also a rumour about a white man living in Madagascar who had been there ten years and is provided with supplies from New York for the benefit of privateers.	n.	n.
40	Consultation, FSJ	14/12/96	Body of Mary Tewsdale found at Sandy Bay Bagley appointed as coroner and Marshall Henry Coates. Jury find that she is guilty of 'laying violent hands on herself' and is therefore to be buried at a crossroads with a stake through her heart. Horton and four Dutch men sent to help carry the body.	y (but misleading – burial is for suicide rather than adultery).	n.

47	Consultation, FSJ	05/03/97	Robert Harding, a planter, complains that Capt. Robert Laycock of the America would not give him 'a Coffrey slave' who his brother-in-law in Bombay, Thomas Moore, had said he had put on board. Laycock claims that it was not specified who the slave – named Calsase – was to be sold to, only that it should be for more than 20 pounds, which was to be remitted to Bombay. Calsase 'was sent by a Guard of Soldiers a board the said shipp with Irons on his Leggs as a prisoner for fear he should runn away according to his usuall mannr of so doeing'.	n.	n.

96	Consultation, FSJ	23/02/98	Cont. account of Capt Glover's voyage to an island called 'babs-key' in the Red Sea and then to the coast of Ethiopia, losing five men who went into the country in search of dates. Then took rice and wood from a Persian ship before sailing for 'Callicut' [Calcutta], meeting fifty English ships and taking one with guns to command the others to give up small arms and powder, then set two afire and sailed toward 'Trinkcubar' [Tranquebar], but 'finding nothing for our use', sailed back towards Madagascar where Captain Glover was killed 'by the negroes there' [no more details]. Shivers appointed as Commander, 'also Bauldrydge, being at St Maryes where he had a fort, and stores of all sorts with about 10 white men and 2 or three hundred negroes, where he trades with all the pirates that come there'. - but apparently this was destroyed and the white men killed when he left for a voyage to 'Mascoigne' [?]	n.
